Express Scribe pro keygen.rarA story on the use of the word 'turban' in the media The way you refer to the turban-wearing masses, show respect, earn respect and wield power. With a view to this, I have been researching about the use of the word 'Turban' and other related words in the media and the misuse of these words have been widely circulated in our society via the media. I have come across an excellent blog with an equally excellent title 'TurbanKiller' who has been practicing the same from 2008 onwards. One also needs to appreciate the fact that Turban Killer explains the word like ' turban' and 'Islamic community' in simple and lucid words. It is a nice read and I feel that every reader will surely appreciate it. In short, I want to commend you all for following that blog. Now, let me direct the attention of all 'out of the blue' readers towards a 2008, a fact that every knowledgeable person would surely know about. 'Muslim women in full hijab or mere braids have been reported arrested, beaten up and even killed in the country' What? This is not a news. It is a blunder by the media. The initial reporter was in a hurry and penned the same in one sentence. There was no intention to hurt any sentiments of the people. Anybody who can think will understand the importance of this and the pain caused by this mistake. All sensible people would not like to keep such blunders in our society. Imagine, the shame we would get if this was an actual news. Now, let us jump into the future. 'Prominent social media users have taken to Twitter to express their disgust over the use of such words in the recent Times Now advertisement controversy'. What? Even I have not seen that. It is so clear that it would have made no sense. Even the most prominent social media users can't have seen that. The channel is associated with the same media house and would have understood the point of advertisement. The channel was doing a business promotion and can't be held accountable for this blunder. Now jump into the next paragraph. 'The word 'Islamic' should not be used even in the description of this headgear. It does not carry any religious significance. In fact 'Muslim�
