Enjoy this book!Q: Android app based on dfe via webservices In the application that I'm developing I have to call a webservice from my Android device to get data from a DB with unique data (because I have an app for IOS and android at the same time) as the webservice in my case returns the data as a JSON (JSONObject) in my case I have to pass a value with the server to know (by my app) if it can or not perform the unique operation I need your help to realize the best solution to this problem: -Should I create a new class with only the getData method and call this web method? -Should I implement this call inside the AsyncTask, so I could show a nice progressBar? -Or should I create an android class that will manage the call when the data is ok, and return the data to the Android class that in turn will not be inside the AsyncTask so I could have a "dead" Application/Activity? Thanks A: 1.Should I create a new class with only the getData method and call this web method? A good practice to follow is put all you logic inside the.java file of the Activity. 2.Should I implement this call inside the AsyncTask, so I could show a nice progressBar? Yes, 6d1f23a050
